Wreck Which Took Life Of Florida Woman

Miss Sheila Rose Colletti was her car collided head-on with a tractor-trailer at 10:45 p. m. Friday, March 16, on Highway 90 about two miles east of Pearlinton.

State Patrolman William P. Kennedy assisted by Sheriff Sylvan J. Ladner and Deputy Raoul Tethard investigated the accident and reported the 1951 Plymouth driven by Miss Colletti, 21 year old Tampa, Fla., woman, was attempting to pass another vehicle when it ran head-on into an oncoming 1958 White tractor-trailer driven by Charles R. Bell, Chickasaw, Ala. Bell escaped injury.

Dr. C. D. Taylor, Pass Christian, who was passing at the time of the accident pronounced Miss Colletti dead at the accident scene.

Sheriff Ladner, serving as Bailiff, called Joe Bennett, acting coroner in the absence of Hancock County Coroner Emilio Piazza. Bennett empaneled a Coroner's Jury who returned a verdict of death due to injuries received in the accident.

The body of the young woman was taken by Fahey's Ambulance Service to Bay St. Louis and shipped by rail to Tampa for burial.

Estimated damage reports showed the Colletti car a total loss with approximately $2,000.00 damage to the tractor-trailer.

LETTER COMMENDS WORK OF HOSPITAL

Just to give our readers an idea of the good work our Hancock County Hospital has been doing during its short existence, we are publishing below, a letter received from Mrs. Elizabeth Price, of Columbia, S. C. in which she expresses her appreciation for treatment accorded her son after a recent automobile accident.

"I would like to express my opinion of Hancock County Hospital, Bay St. Louis, Miss., through this newspaper.

My son, Gary Price, was injured in an automobile accident ten miles from here on the night of March 10, and was brought in a private car to the Hancock County Hospital.

I am sure that the quick attention and the part of the medical staff and those helping saved Gary's life.

I thank God for this little hospital and all those connected with it. I really don't think one could get better care and service in the largest hospital in the country. My son has received excellent medical care by efficient people. But most of all, they have been warm, friendly, personal which comes from the human heart, and which is so important to a patient's recovery.

I hope to hear some day of my son's recovery. There is a great deal of work in there and I am sure that the staff and the patients are all working for the same goal. I am sure that the staff and the patients are all working for the same goal. I am sure that the staff and the patients are all working for the same goal.

STREET LIGHTING GREAT JOB BY CITY

Since a newspaper feels its voice is heard by the city, it sometimes feels it would like to take the part of speaking for the people, and at this time we feel that the Commission Council of the City of St. Louis has done a wonderful job in the installation of the new street lighting system.

Not until this week were we on areas where new lighting had been installed and was being used. The part of the week we happened to be on the beach at night, and suddenly felt as if we had been transported on a magic carpet to another town and set in the midst of the Great White Way. A slight suggestion is permissible, we trust, since the decided contrast between the faint illumination from the antiquated system was so great as compared with the brilliant gleams from the modern high voltage lights which are now brightening our thoroughfares.

The safety and improvement which this system has brought to the people of Bay St. Louis reflects credit to the men who fathered the city. New lighting has already been installed along the beach from Main Street to Union Street and have been strung along Main Street and Carroll Avenue. Work crews of the Mississippi Power Co., have been steadily on the job, and it will not be long before the entire program as outlined in this paper two weeks ago will be completed.

From a standpoint of convenience the lights are a boon. For persons who walk after dark, the improved illumination is a veritable boon, allowing them to see the way and preventing possible accidents of tripping too late or too soon from curbs to streets, and the removal of obstacles which could not be easily seen in the dark.

Drivers of motor vehicles are relieved of undue strain by being able to better see pedestrians who may be crossing streets in the paths of their conveyances, and are much less apt to accidentally cause injury or property damage. Parents can feel more secure with their children, and after dark entertainment will have well lighted streets on which to stroll to and from such jaunts with their children, with no darkened areas to encounter enroute.

A great portion of possible danger from lurkers who cover of darkness to molest or attempt robberies will be eradicated with the more penetrating lighting. Women will feel safer when they travel unescorted after dark.

We have not yet seen the reflected glow of the new system from the Bay St. Louis bridge approach to the city, but as we think back we remember the tingle of anticipation always felt as we drove after dark from the east and glimpsed Bay St. Louis with its lights making a gay welcome to a town which reminded us of a picture postcard of some enchanting village lapped by the warm sparkling waters of the Mediterranean.

To night we are fancifully thinking that with the more brilliant beams of the brighter lights our city will take on an aspect of being jewel bedecked, and are reminded of the exquisite poem "Manhattan" by Charles Hanson Towne, when he wrote:

"For the night was her ancient lover, valiant, yet cruel and strong, she craved a waking woman, on whose lips there lay a song, she gave her wonderful jewels, long strings of glimmering pearls, her eyes that had been tired gleamed now like a beautiful girl's."

He clasped on her throat a necklace that flashed and shone like fire, and she rose the City in imperial attire!"

So to the members of the Commission Council, John Seafide and Commissioners Cyril Glover and Warren Traub, we wish to say thanks for us and for St. Louis for the wonderful jewels which our city wears and which shine with fiery gleams and unfold our town in his strong dark arms.

The Hancock County Eagle really can fly! As soon as the paper comes off the press, each week, it is sent by Mrs. Ducre Bourgeois of Waveland to her daughter, Mrs. Audrey Cobb, and her family who are living in Japan. Mrs. Cobb passes it on, and the Coast news is brought to more than one family. Edwin Cobb, Audrey's husband, is making a career of the service and now at 27 years of age, with 9 1/2 years in the service he has been made Master Sergeant. The Cobbs and their three small daughters plan to return to the United States in June. Sergeant Cobb will be stationed in Biloxi where he owns an attractive home.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Ducre Bourgeois who celebrated their 28th wedding anniversary on St. Joseph's Day.

Best wishes go too, to Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Brockman, Sr., who celebrated their 44th wedding anniversary on March 18.

Children of the Waveland and Bay St. Louis Public Schools will enjoy a two-day holiday this week. Schools will be closed on Thursday and Friday in order to permit teachers to attend the annual convention of the Mississippi Education Association to be held in Jackson.

Sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Yarborough of Pearlman upon the tragic death last week of their young son, Mickey, age 16. The boy was in the 6th grade at Bay High School. He will be greatly missed by his many friends and teachers. Mr. Stanley Yarborough is the agent at the L & N depot in Waveland.

Court Appointment Of Counsel For Indigents Accused Of Capital Crimes

The lawyer who defends a person charged with or indicted for a capital crime under appointment by the court, is merely doing his duty — a very definite and unavoidable duty — regardless of how unpleasant it may be.

A capital crime is one for the conviction of which the law provides the death penalty. In Mississippi this includes murder, rape, kidnapping, armed robbery and treason. An indigent is a person who the court knows is financially unable to employ private counsel.

The right of counsel in such cases is guaranteed by our Federal and State constitutions. The Mississippi Code of 1942, Section 2503, as amended, specifically provides for such appointment of counsel by the Circuit Court of Justice in vacation and allows a very nominal compensation to the attorney for attorneys appointed.

Numerous court decisions have upheld and enforced these constitutional and statutory provisions. Many cases even furnish counsel to indigent defendants on lesser crimes.

As an officer of the court and under the exhortations of professional ethics of the American and Mississippi State Bars, the attorney appointed by the court has no choice but to accept the appointment unless a compelling reason acceptable to the court prevents him. Likewise under the appointment the attorney must use every proper and legal means to effectively defend the accused, including appeal of a conviction, if necessary. Often he must use his own money to pay incidental expenses of the defense, such as investigation of facts and preparation of witnesses, and it is not unusual for him to lose thousands of dollars before he is allowed to leave because he has been so successful in his regular practice.

This is part of the democratic process and was well known to the framers of the Constitution. It is a duty which every citizen owes to his fellow citizens, and it is a duty which every citizen owes to his country.

MISSISSIPPI HOMETOWN DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

The deadline for entering the 1957 Mississippi Hometown Development Program has been extended to April 15. All communities and committees wishing to participate in "Operation Beautification" are asked to get their entries in right away. Steve E. Babington of Brookhaven, chairman of the Mississippi Economic Council project, reports:

"Last year 127 communities entered the self-help program," Mr. Babington said. "The program is more attractive this year, with a new division for towns 1,000 and under. Total cash awards have been raised to $7,800. A community has everything to gain and nothing to lose by participating."

He said entry kits are available from MEC headquarters, P. O. Box 1849, Jackson. Any local organization, or organizations acting jointly, is eligible to sponsor an entry.

Meanwhile, plans are complete for awarding winners of the 1957 program their checks at the Council's annual meeting on April 16th. Final judging in last year's program took place on March 13 and 14.

The three-year project, costing over $30,000, is being underwritten by public spirited firms and agencies in the state. This year there are 36 sponsors and associate sponsors.

Communities entering are required to select not more than five projects for action during the year, with one of the projects being that of community beautification. Materials for selecting projects and helping in self-analysis work are available from the Council.

CORRECTION

In a story in last week's issue showing Mrs. Lucille Bourgeois, manager of Olen's Department Store, here, receiving award for "Store of the Year," we failed to mention that this was strictly for Olen-operated stores, and that there is no connection with other locally-owned stores.

Mrs. Bourgeois will receive a one-week all-expense-paid trip to New York in recognition of her services.

COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES

BY HOWARD F. SIMMONS
Hancock County Agent

FERTILIZER USE

The use of fertilizer has more than doubled in the past 10 to 15 years. There must be a reason for this. Farmers have found it to be profitable. Research and farmer experience have proved that wise investment in fertilizer can be expected, to pay high cash returns.

Sixteen plant food elements have been proven essential to crop growth. Most are supplied naturally by the soil. Only a few, those needed in largest amounts — nitrogen, phosphate, potash and calcium are found to be deficient. On some soils, magnesium and sulphur can be added to the deficient list.

Soils testing officers forms the best method of determining the specific needs of the soil in these deficient elements. If a farmer guesses he may guess too low and not apply enough, or he may go too high and apply more than the plants can profitably use, in either case he loses.

Take your samples now and send them to the State Soils Testing Laboratory at Mississippi State College for analysis. By doing this now, you will get ahead of the rush caused by last minute samples. You will get your recommendations back in plenty of time for the 1958 crop year.

For soil boxes, information sheets and instructions for taking samples, see your local county agent, the service is free.

TRACTOR SAFETY

Tractors that run over and kill or severely injure drivers still present major problems to farmers. Nearly always these accidents are due to the driver, not the tractor. The National Safety Council says that most tractor accidents are due to unsafe handling.

Here are some rules to help prevent tractor accidents: Remind all tractor drivers to drive at safe, low speeds, avoid holes, soft ground, ditches and steep hillsides. When pulling heavy loads, think to the driver in reverse, these rules are:

1. Never use a tractor to pull a load that is too heavy for it.

2. Never use a tractor to pull a load that is too long for it.

3. Never use a tractor to pull a load that is too wide for it.

4. Never use a tractor to pull a load that is too high for it.

5. Never use a tractor to pull a load that is too heavy for it.

6. Never use a tractor to pull a load that is too long for it.

7. Never use a tractor to pull a load that is too wide for it.

8. Never use a tractor to pull a load that is too high for it.

9. Never use a tractor to pull a load that is too heavy for it.

10. Never use a tractor to pull a load that is too long for it.
